OUTRAGBOUS BAUTALITY .- A soldier walking out Fourteenth street yesterday, passed a fine cow standing on the sidewalk, when turning around he deliberately plunged his bayonet into her forehead, killing her instantly. We understand that the animal was the property of poor people, and a very valuable one. Of course the soldier was unknown, and the offence goes unpunished, and the unfortunate owners must loose their property, and receive no remuneration whatever. Queen Victoria will visit Germany

Rosenau is a charming residence, and was occupied by the Queen and Prince Consort on their first visit to Germany after their marriage, and it is also more especially associated with the birth and childhood of the Prince Consort.

HEADQ'RS 1ST BRIG. 10TH DIV. 13TH ARMY CORPS, CAMP IN REAR OF VICKSBURG, MISS. Capt. J. Hough, A. A. G. 10th Division: In compliance with an order from Division

Headquarters I herewith submit the following report of the proceedings of my brigade since leaving Milliken's Bend, La. leaving Milliken's Bend, La.

On the 13th day of April, 1863, I received orders to have my brigade prepare two days cooked rations and be ready to march at a moment's notice. On the morning of the 14th I received orders to march, and by 4 o'clock C. M. was ready for the road, and marched to oak Grove Plantation, where we encamped ll next morning.

Resumed our line of march and proceeded s far as Holmes' Plantation, about fifteen miles from last camp. Here we remained until Friday evening, April 24th, when we moved to Smith's Plantation, distant about seven miles, arriving there about 11 o'clock P. M. on Sunday, the 26th, when we embarked on board ransports on Round-a-way Bayou, the course of which we followed until we finally entered the Mississippi river opposite Carthage, thence proceeded down the river to Perkins' Plantation, arriving there about 9 o'clock P. M. in a very severe storm.
On Tuesday, April 28th, I received orders to embark four of my regiments and the 17th Ohio battery on transports and barges, to proceed to a point as near Grand Gulf as practicable, to act under Brig. Gen. Osterhaus, commanding 9th Division, 13th Army Corps; and as a reserve to his Division. I accordingly took with me the 16th and 67th Indiana, 83d bio, and 23d Wisconsin regiments, and embarked upon barges and transports—leaving transportation of every description, even my own and field officers' horses; and proceeded to Hard Times Landing, opposite and above Grand Gulf, and remained during the unsuc-Grand Gulf, and remained uning the disto-cessful attempt of the gunboats to reduce Grand Gulf on Wednesday, April 29th. Being personally on the gunboat General Price, which had in tow a transport containing two of my regiments, we stood out in the stream in constant readiness to avail ourselves of any dvantage which might be gained by the gun-

The attempt to reduce the principal batteries proving a failure, we disembarked and marched across the bend to a point below Grand Gulf, where we encamped for the night. On the 30th we re-embarked (the gunboats and transports having run the blockade during the night), and proceeded to Bruinsburg, Miss. where we drew six days two thirds rations, and about 11 o'clock P. M. took up our line of march for Port Gibson, Miss. Marched steadily all night, and about sunrise we heard neavy and rapid cannonading in front, and was warmly engaged with the enemy. Pressing vigorously on, we reached the scene of the engagement about 7 o'clock, when I immediately formed in line of battle in the rear of Gen. Hovey's division, our division consti-

The part taken by my brigade in the battle of that day, while it did not lead to much loss, was very exhausting, from the necessity of rapidly shifting ground with a part or the whole of the brigade, as the weak points of our line successively presented themselves. I continued thus supporting the line until or-dered with my brigade further to the left, to relieve the 2d brigade under Col. Landrum, who had fought desperately through the day, when we advanced further to the front than any other troops, driving the enemy from the hill. Night putting an end to that day's fight, our men sank exhausted upon the ground. They had marched all night and fought all day in a burning sun and without having had a mouthful to eat since the previous evening.

Next morning (May 2), by order of Gen.

McClernand, I took the advance with my brigade and proceeded cautiously into Port Gibson, where I had the pleasure of raising the Stars and Stripes to their wonted place of honor. The rear-guard of the enemy were retreating out of town, having fired the bridge over the South Fork, or Little Bayou Pierre. I had the 17th Ohio battery to open upon them, but they succeeded in making good their retreat as we had no means of pure

Remaining in that position until I was satisfied there was no enemy near, Bayou Pierre and went into camp about ark. We remained in camp at this place un-ark. We remained in camp at this place un-il the morning of the 7th inst, when we marched to a point half a mile beyond Cayuga, marched to a point han white where we remained until the morning of the where we remained until the morning of the 12th, when we countermarched to Cayuga, nence bearing left in a westward direction about ten miles, when we encamped for the night in line of battle near Fourteen-mile Creek, six miles from Edwards's station. Next morning (13th) we marched back to the Jackson road, a distance of about six miles. Here we remained until the 15th, when, following General Blair's division, we marched to Ray mond, about fifteen miles, getting into camp at 9 o'clock P. M. At daylight on the 16th, arched out on the Vicksburg road towards Edwards's station, my brigade being in

About six miles out from Raymond we came upon the enemy's pickets, when our line of battle was quickly formed with heavy skirmishing parties in front. The batterie were thrown into position and shelled the enemy's forces very successfully. We skir-mished along, gradually driving the enemy before us, while our main force followed along the road until we reached a water course, across which the bridge had been broken lown by the retreating enemy. Finding the enemy was in retreat but a short distance ahead, and apprehending they might avail themselves of some prominent hills, from which they could sweep the plain we were in, I pushed my brigade rapidly ahead until the skirmishers began to find it a hot contest, and as we rose to the crest of the first hill, had abundant reason to con-gratulate myself for my speed—as the enemy had rallied and planted their battery on the had rained and planted their oattery on the second hill, not having had time to form on the first. They poured in a most terrific fire of shot, shell, grape, and canister, but my men were well protected by the crest of the hill and my sharp-shooters kept them so much annoyed they had to abandon some of their guns.

After repeated applications to Gen. Smith for reinforcements, both of infantry and artillery, I finally succeeded in obtaining the 19th Kentucky and 77th Illinois of Col. Landrum's brigade, who had been ready and imalso obtained two guns of the 17th Ohio battery, which had been preceded by part of the Mercantile Battery, both of which did adninable execution.

Receiving orders from Gen. Smith through one of his staff to halt, I did so, holding the position I had gained. It was my conviction at the time, confirmed by all I have learned since, that properly supported by the division of General Blair, we could have captured the whole rebel force opposed to us, and reached Edwards's Station before sunset! From prisoners taken next day, we learned that after the loss of General Tilghman, who was killed by our batteries, they had attempted to run off their artillery, but failing to do so, abandoned it, since which time we have obtained the ins, 12 pieces; also that the whole rebel force treated in great disorder, it being impossiple for the officers to again form their men nto line, the rebel forces being cut complete
y in two by the rapid advance of the brigade entirely severing the division of the rebel General Loring from the remainder of their cops, compelling him to beat a hasty and sorderly retreat to the left, where a timely advance of sufficient force must have resulted

The night after the battle the men lay on heir arms, hourly expecting an a night passed quietly, however, and at daylight we moved on in line of battle, but soon had abundant evidence the rebels had skedaddled abundant evidence the repers has skedadiled most hurriedly, leaving arms, ammunition, &c., strewed by the road-side.

Forming again in column, we moved on through Edwards's Station without further interruption. As we approached Black River, heavy firing became very audible. I received orders from General Smith to move rapidly orward, and take position on the left of Ger Osterhaus' division. This done, we were ordered forward in line of battle, arriving at the edge of the forest through which we had advanced. I found we could not advance across the open field without changing front as the enemy would have an enfilading fire apon my line. I rapidly changed front, so that my left would cover the enemy's works on the left of the cotton gin. Then I ordered that my left would cover the on the left of the cotton gin. a charge across the field, which was gallantly executed. When my skirmishers arrived within two hundred yards of the enemy, a white handkerchief was displayed on their entrenchments, upon which Lieut. Conover my A. A. A. General, and Captain Keigwin acting aid, who were in advance of the skir mishers, rode forward and received the surrender of the forces and colors of the 60th reg-ment Tennessee, under command of Lieut col. Gregg, and reported them to me. About the same time our forces took possession the whole line of the enemy's works, they re treating across Big Black, and setting fire to First District of Kentucky.

emy could have abandoned, without another effort, the exceedingly advantageous position and fortification afforded by the natural conof this report; also a report of the prisoners formation of the ground.

We soon learned from negroes there was no enemy between us and Mt. Alban, a small place about half way between Black river and Vicksburg, which information we found cor-rect. About half a mile beyond Mt. Alban, we found a bridge so burt and broken as to be impassable, examination showing it would cause considerable delay to repair it so that artillery could pass over in safety. We therefore made a considerable detour to the left, taking a route through the country, which, in the course of a couple of miles, struck the Baldwin Ferry road, which was the route we were seeking. Proceeding slowly and cautiously, we camped that night about two and a half miles from the enemy's works in rear of Vicksburg.

Tuesday morning (May 19th), we again moved towards the fortifications until, when within one and a half miles off, their skirmishers began to appear. I immediately formed my four regiments in line of battle, on the right of the Vicksburg road, the 16th Indiana and 33d Ohio in front, supported by the 67th Indiana and 23d Wisconsin, and, covered by the crest of the hill, the 17th Ohio battery. I threw out a heavy force of skirmishers under command of Mai. Redfield (16th Indiana), who command of Maj. Redfield (16th Indiana), who gradually drove back the enemy's skirmishers, until I finally advanced my brigade to a ravine running at right angles with the railroad, and in the rear of the hill on which is the cotton gin. As the enemy were driven further in, we advanced until within about four hundred yards of the forts.

On the 20th received orders to be in readi-On the 20th received orders to be in readiness to charge the enemy's works at 2 o'clock P. M. At the given signal the brigade, with tremendous cheering, rushed over the crest of the hill in front of them, and taking a moment's breathing time, commenced the ascent of the next hill. Finding it unadvisable to advance in line of battle on account of the greater exposure, I ordered the regiments forward by companies as skirmishes; in which ward by companies as skirmishers, in which way we succeeded in finally driving the greatpart of the enemy's sharpsho their entrenchments, my men lying immediately under the works, and effectually silencing the enemy's artillery. We maintained that position, keeping up a constant fire at every head that showed itself until 10 o'clock at night, when we were relieved by General Benton's brigade. It was fully 2 A. M. on the 21st before I succeeded in withdrawing all my

During all that day (21st) my men rested, occupying themselves in putting their arms in thorough order. On the morning of the 22d, I received orders to prepare for an assault on the enemy's works at 10 o'clock A. M., to support Gen. Benton's brigade.

At the hour designated I had my four regiments arranged in order, the 67th Indiana occupying the road passing down the hill to the right of the burnt chimneys, the 23d Wisconsin immediately in its rear, the 16th Indiana on the hillside of the ravine to the right and in front of said road, supported by the 83d

I advanced the regiments with a yell and a rush over the hill into the last ravine, and mmediately commenced advancing up the pill, upon which is the fort we were attacking—three regiments of my command, the 16th Indiana, 83d Ohio, and 67th Indiana, on the right of Gen. Benton's brigade, my left resting on the road, and the right extending along the crest of the hill in front of the fort, and not more than twenty steps from it. By 10:30 A. M. we had silenced their batteries to a great extent, and the regiments had their ors flying against the walls of the fort. There being some symptoms of an attempt to turn our flanks, I sent four companies of the 23d Wisconsin to support the 67th Indiana on the right, and the remaining six companies to the left in support of the 16th Indiana.

While this was being done I received an While this was being done I received an order from Gen. Smith to send two regiments of my command to support Gen. Benton's left, but as this would reduce my force one half and leave my front terribly exposed, I mmediately sent to Gen. Smith, representing these facts. His answer was: "It is an order we remained at Port Gibson until the morning of the 3d inst., when I was ordered to take my brigade to the hills back of the town, as there were symptoms of the enemy as the state of the case, and received permission from Gen. Sand received permission from Gen. inquiry from Gen. Carr, why the regiments him that it would be the commanded the advance. Notwithstand order concerning the regiments, and, telling to withdraw from the ground which had bee feared, the rebels finding the fire slackened and the line weakened in their front, opened a most destructive fire.

On consultation with Gen. Benton, I determined to take the responsibility of replacing my regiments without delay; but the work was now most difficult, as the rebels had the upper hand, and seemed determined to keep a message came from Gen. Carr, telling me to se my discretion about withdrawing my regiments. Such a message ten minutes before, or such consent, when I plead for it, would have saved a hundred lives!

After repeated applications, I succeeded in getting permission to carry a piece of artillery to my front line. Accordingly, a gun from the Mercantile Battery was taken by a squad of the 23d Wisconsin close up to the point held by the 16th Indiana, and supported by the latter regiment, not more than twenty or twenty-five feet from the fort, against which it did admirable work. By this time the guns of my command had become so foul by constant firing that I was compelled to use cali-bre 54 in place of 58, the calibre of the arms. A brigade was sent us from General Quimby's division, but owing to their incautious manner of approaching, drew from the enemy a most galling fire, both of muskerry and written followed by a control of the control of artillery—followed by an attempt of the enemy to charge; probably with a view of capturing the guns we were using so effectually. The brigade reinforcing us broke and re-tired in great disorder! My brigade, now greatly reduced in strength, manfully held its ground, and the 16th Indiana prepared with fixed bayonets to receive the threatened charge; which, however, did not come.

It was now night, and hostilities for the most part ceased. We drew off our men after having maintained the ground for nearly ten nours continuous fighting. I am of the opin-on that had we been reinforced at 12 M., or he demonstration kept up along the line to our ight, thus preventing the enemy from mass-ng directly in our front, we could have gained a lodgement in the enemy's works.

Since that time to the present date (May 24) nothing has transpired, the men quietty resting on the days succeeding the fight.
The 17th Onio battery, attached to my brigade, in the action of the 20th and 22d, was almost entirely detached from my infantry, and hence they have not hitherto been me tioned as frequently, perhaps, as was their due, and I take this opportunity to bear willing testimony to the brilliancy of their work. Being frequently at the batteries with them, I repeatedly observed the unwearying assiduity

o injure the enemy, and the promptitude and nthusiasm with which the men responded t every call made upon them. I cannot close without commending with highest praise the gallantry of my staff offi-cers—Lieut. Conover, A. A. A. G.; Captain Keigwin and Lieut. Elliott, aids; and Lieut. Richardson, A. Insp. Coleridge was the so ervant and friend to one of the bachelors of he inner temple. Campbell was born in the sixty-seventh year of his father's age, and was the youngest of ten children. Keats was born in a livery stable, and was apprenticed at fif-teen to a surgeon. Alexander Wilson, the distinguished naturalist, was brought up to schoolmaster. Robert Dodsley, who was the projector of the "Annual Register" in which Surke was engaged, and who was first to col-ect and republish the "Old English Plays" which formed the foundation of the "National Drama," raised himself from the low condition able and influential men of his time. He has also stated that the rich, humane, pathetic tenderness, and admira-ble tact of Miss Edgeworth's "Irish Portraits," led him first to think that something could be done, or attempted, for his own country, of the same kind as she had so fortunately achieved for Ireland. PROPOSITION TO HANG DUTCH SOLDIERS .- Of ate, in all battles and in all recent incursions made by Federal cavalry, we have found the great mass of Northern soldiers to consist of watches in a dozen counties of Alabama, were immaculate Dutchmen. The national odor of Dutchmen, as distinctive of the race as that which, constantly ascending to heaven, has distended the nostrils of the negro, is as unmistakable as that peculiar to a pole-cat, an old pipe, or a lager beer saloon. Orimes, thefts, and insults to the women of the South invariably mark the course of these stinking bodies of sour-crout. Rosecrans himself is an unmixed Dutchman, an accursed race which has overrun the vast districts of the country of the Northwest. * * It happens that we entertain a greater degree of respect for an Ethiopian in the ranks of the Northern armies than for an oderiferous Dutchman, who can have no possible interest in this revolution. Why not hang every Dutchman captured? We will, hereafter, hang, shoot, or imprison for life all white men taken in the command negroes, and enslave the negroes themelves. This is not too harsh. No human ing will assert the contrary. Why, then could we not hang a Dutchman, who deserves infinitely less of our sympathy than Sambo? The live masses of beer, krout, tocco, and rotten cheese, which, on two legs and four (on foot and mounted), go prowling hrough the South, should be used to manure through the South, should be used to manife the sandy plains and barren hill-sides of Alabama, Tennessee, and Georgia. * * * Whenever a Dutch regiment adorns the limbs of a Southern forest, daring cavalry raids into the South shall cease. * * President Davis need not be specially consulted; and is an accident of this sort should occur to a plun dering band, like that captured by Forrest, we e not inclined to believe that our Presiden

Some antiquarian, in Wales, has discovered in a stone quarry, they say, twenty-five feet below the surface, and in a large block of gray free-working stone, the fossil remains of a razor, a pair of scissors, and an open pocket knife. The first two articles were unfortunately broken up on severing the block, but the knife, a completely fossilized implement, was luckily discovered in time to be preserved from destruction. They infer from this discovery that man existed on the face of the earth millions of years ago, used scissors and knives, and shaved with a Sheffield razor. Lieutenant J. T. Major General Ord, severely wounded in the leg last October in the battle of Metamora on the Hatchie, has just reported to General Grant for duty. He succeeds Gen. McClernand in command. He has the reputation of being an able officer, and will doubtless bring that wing of the army into full sympathy and hearty co-operation with the balance. Many things are said to have conspired to induce Gen. McClernand's removal. Tardy obedience of orders in some instances, and positive disobedience in others are alleged as the cause in army circles. A recent order of his published in the St. Louis Democrat, arrogating to himself and command all the credit of the present campaign, thus begetting dissatisfaction and bitterness in other divisions of the army, may have hastened his removal.

[Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] IN THE REAR OF VICKSBURG, Miss., ? June 16, 1863. This is the 27th day of the siege of Vicksourg. How many more will intervene before ts fall, is yet hidden in the momentous future. The fate of nations and empires may rest on the result of this contest. Suppose the siege to be raised, the Federal army whipped and annihalated; who for a moment could doubt Jeff Davis' claim fair for recognition into the family of nations? France is liable at any oment to do this, while England has no scruples against such a course; and if she should look through her financial spectacles and see a few shining golden eagles through the cracks of loose diplomacy, America would hear the roar of the British lion instanter. In either case, would our Government cry for quarters or an armistics? Not News The quarters or an armistice? No! Neven! The great battle for existence and liberty, and a continuance of nationality, would then mence in earnest. On the account of merce particularly, each side would soon look around for allies. Europe once engaged in warfare and her most powerful nations arestiny do thy work! 'Man proposes-God disposes! If we take things as we see and understand them, then have we no fear of the result at the present writing? Admiral Porter is thun-dering with his heaviest guns on Vicksburg's front, and if the rebel works have been ke ot there, the rear must be near melting heat.

Military matters in the rear may in truth be said to be in a forward state of con quite ready for any emergency. Gen. Bur-bridge, commanding 1st brigade, has acted as engineer in our principal works, offensive and defensive, and although he is not a scientific engineer of grade, his fine military eye does the outlines of advantageous positions quicker than instruments, and the next order is for a fatigue party to accomplish the practical part. He is not only deeply interested in the defences, but indefatigable, and is often out superintending working parties in this work until midnight. Col. Landrum, commanding 2d brigade, is one of Kentucky's noblest paand has the welfare of his country at He, too, is a laboring man, to which his command will attest to a man. served long and faithfully; merited star forthcoming? He is ever ready with his command either to take the stern battle front, or prompt to reinforce when call-ed upon. In this torn and tried army, where shall my praises cease? Brave officers and men are all around, and if Joe Johnston at-mpts to raise this siege he will pay very dear for his whistle.

Gen. Burnside is reported to have arrived yesterday with his corps and at once assigned a position on the right, near the Yazoo, and not far removed from Haines's Bluffs. To Joe. Johnston, Bragg & Co., I would say—

"Lay on, McDuff!" Three times have the enemy made efforts to ut their way through the cordon of our musketry and artillery, and each time their sally was turned into a speedy skedaddle back to their works. If every part of the line was as well fortified and as closely guarded as the front of the 10th division, 13th corps, not a single reb, in any disguise or under any pre-text, save without arms, could get in or out. Pemberton's communications with Johnston, and vice versa, would find Jordan a hard road to travel. Gen. Burbridge has caused a map to be gotten up representing every ravine, ridge, and knoll between 10th division front and the rebel fortifications; also including their chain of forts, our own lines of rifle-pits, positions of batteries and single guns, and location of each regiment in camp. Such a map is invaluable, and it is the only correct method y which a commanding officer can thorough-

by which a commanding officer can incrougaly know his position on the field of battle over broken ground like this.

with a tail like a comet, but travelling much nearer this mundane sphere, came a rebel shell from Gen. Logan's front on our left, and distem Gen. Logan's front on our left, and directly over our quarters. Heretofore it had been quiet for an hour, and this flying visitor making such a devil of a noise rather disturbed our equanimity. Had hardly recovered from the first call, when over came another, and yet another in quick succession, none bursting near us. A short lull then; a shell burst on the ridge to our left. Two more followed suit. Bullets helped to vary the prolowed suit. Bullets helped to vary the programme, and we began to feel much flattered that so much notice had been taken of our position. Our batteries, which were doubtless the real objects of secesh's solicitude, opened on the spunky battery, and soon compelled a cessation of hostilities. During the firing we took a walk up on the hill near a couple of pet 30-pounder Parrotts. They made the welkin ring for a short time, as did a 64 on Mc-Pherson's front. The Admiral considering himself in the game, antied two (bombs) and went three better. We now have mortars in the rear which do admirable execution, and are just the things needed. Just before dark, a reb jumped out of his rifle-pit with a blanket slung over his shoulders and ran like a deer for our lines, his pace doubtless accelerated by the fire from his com-ades in the rear. He has not yet been reported to Headquarters.

June 17, 1863.—Items.—I learned but recently that a portion of General Burnside's troops were landed at Milliken's Bend, to chastise the force under McCullough. They at once marched on Richmond, caused the enemy to rapidly retreat, burnt the place and returned, Il within two days, and did not lose a man.

A well known commander was drilling a brigade at "Kripple Kreek," Tenn., a short time since and in it was a slim portion of the "1159th Illinois." Quite a large number of this regiment have deserted upon every occasion offered, the men generally being very in-attentive. The commanding officer of "all that is left of them" was severely censured, the other day, for dereliction of duty. The

FOR CONGRESS. ROBERT MALLORY,

FRIDAY, JUNE 26, 1863.

The expedition under the command of not accountable scarcely for what he said, and Col. Saunders, which returned to Boston, Whitley county, on Wednesday, from an important and completely successful reconnoissance through Eastern Tennessee, must be regarded as one of the best planned and executed of the war. Starting from Williamsburg, in this State, he struck the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad at Lenoire, in Roane county, and destroyed the track as far up as Knoxville. Here he made a demonstration against the latter place, which had the effect to draw the rebel troops from above to its defence; then eluding them, he passed on toward Strawberry Plains, on the border of Knox and Jefferson counties, burned the bridge there sixteen hundred feet long, and also Slate Creek bridge, three hundred and twelve feet long. He then pushed forward to Mossy Creek, and destroyed the bridge three hundred and twenty-five feet over it. By this bold movement sixty miles of railroad were rendered useless, and 2,237 feet of bridging over three important streams. From this point he returned to the mountains with three captured pieces of artillery, two hundred boxes of artillery ammunition, over five hundred prisoners, and one thousand stand of arms, and after having destroyed large quantities of military stores and saltpetre works. This result will render the position of Bragg very insecure, and if, as we perceive is the case, there has been a corresponding movement on the railroads in North Alabama or ment on the railroads in North Alabama or of clothing, except he has bought it here, bor-Mississippi, he will have the most important rowed it of a more fortunate comrade in arms, avenues of escape closed upon him. All this looks auspicious for a forward movement by Rosecrans, and all the indications are preparing us for speedy intelligence of the onward march of the Army of the Cumberland. The position of Bragg in Middle Tennessee is doubtless isolated; he can receive no reinforcements or supplies from the east until the damages done by Col. Saunders are repaired, and it will take long and hard work to do this, while from the west he can expect no aid, for Johnston has his hands full to take care of himself. We are much pleased with the looks of things on the rebel flanks, and hope soon to be able to record some glorious results as the necessary consequences of Col. Saunders's

THE POSITION .- We have not unfrequently expected to receive, very soon, intelligence of vastly important events almost simultaneously from various directions. Now we are expecting such things, and, this time, we feel listen to him, and who, as McDowell testifies, very sure that we shall not be disappointed. "attracted the attention of every one by his We think that our expectation or the public's unseemly conduct"-promoted imr can scarcely be too much excited. The army of Gen. Rosecrans at Murfreesboro has, it is believed, been for some time prepar- prised, surrounded, and finally cut to pieces ing to advance. We have heard that it began and his command dispersed like a flock of to advance on Tuesday morning. Having no sheep, he himself not stopping until he reached official information of the fact, we of course | Baltimore; and, to crown all, he is immediatecannot vouch for it. But we have no doubt | ly placed in command of another division! that the gallant General-in-Chief of the Army of the Cumberland has raised or is raising the cry of "Onward." Of the position and strength of the opposing army under the command of Bragg we know nothing. Some of our military men think that he has been greatly weakened by the sending of reinforcements to Johnston in Mississippi, and others think as confidently that he has spared none of the strength of his army, but, on the contrary, has daily been adding to the number of his troops. Our chief trust in the case is in the military sagacity of Gen. Rosecrans and in his means of information. If he decides to advance, as we suppose he does, we have a strong and deep trust that ernment; its people begin to see the great inhis movement, although he may be opposed by a skilful and wary and resolute General by the enactment of laws which exempt and a brave and veteran army, will be a great the rich from conscription, and compel those and triumphant success, for he knows that the | who are not property holders to fight the war success of his movement is almost a necessity to the United States-that his defeat, while of course not fatal, would be one of the most | Carolina therefore threatens to secede from terrible of calamities to our country.

The Supreme Court of North hardly any telling what, so far as we in the | Carolina decided in favor of liberating a con-West are concerned, does not depend upon script named Irwin, who had procured a subthem. We are concerned in them for infinitely more than our own lives and fortunes. Of the affairs at and around Vicksburg and Port Hudson, the public can judge, from the that Irwin shall receive the protection which facts published, as well as we can. Perhaps he has claimed, and to carry out this deterour armies before these places have suffered greater disasters than we have information of, for assistance to the Union army. Advices but there is, we believe, an absolute certainty, from Newbern assert that General Foster, that those strongholds are invested without the Federal commanding officer, could raise any probability of relief, and, that both, either from storm or famine, will be in our possession in a very few days or hours. There seems to ry authority. North Carolina would flock be no fear of Gen. Johnston at Vicksburg, almost en masse to the Union standard and and there is evidently no apprehension of any resist the tyrannical encroachments of Davis outside force at Port Hudson; and certainly nothing but outside forces can save those two tremendous and all-important rebel positions. North Carolina, Florida, Louisiana, Tennes-From those quarters we expect the most favorable results. We do not believe that we can be disappointed. There is, however, the position in the North.

We know not what to say of that. Immense movements are going on there. Our military affairs there, managed by mere politicians and not very wise ones, have been badly mismanaged. Gen. Hooker, the blusterer and the failure, is still in command of our vast Army of the Potomac, and Gen. Milroy, who lately said, that, after putting down the rebellion, he would have the army put its foot upon the whole conservative party of the North, has, under the most disgraceful circumstances, been beaten, whipped, whipped shamefully, whilst entrenched in his own position, commanding ten or twelve thousand men who certainly, if well commanded, might and would have resisted everything opposed to them. As matters are, we do not know, we cannot know, what to expect from the North. The immense rebel armies, led by skilful Generals, appear to be advancing upon Baltimore and Philadelphia, whilst Hooker's army seems entirely unable to make the slightest opposition to them, and the President and Secretary of War and General-in-Chief and Cabinet appear to think of nothing but the fate of Washington. We hope most earnestly that the Northern invasion is not what it seems to be, or that it recompense, and if the South lost a slave, its may be most promptly and powerfully resisted. Still, if the Northern States find themselves to be invaded, we all know that there will be from that source such an outpouring for the suppression of the rebellion, as never entered into rebel dreams.

COMPOUND CEDRON BITTERS The Latest and Most Important Dis-The Latest and Most Important Discovery of the 19th Century.

No Man's Name is More intimately connected with the history of the Materia Medica of the United States, or more favorably known as a ploneer in medical discovery, than that of Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky. His inimitable preparation of Sarseparilla, has leng stood at the head of the various compounds of that valuable drug. His Compound Pectoral of Wild Cherry has become a household word throughout the West and South; and his Worm body the Cedron is potent to cpre, no matter what the disease may be.

While Dr. Bull is not prepared to endorse this extravagant pretension, he is nevertheless satisfied from a thorough examination of the evidence relating to its virtues, that, as a remedy and preventive for all diseases arising from exposure, either to changes of weather and climate, or to the miasmatic influences, it stands without a rival, and justly deserves the reputation it has so long enjoyed in Central America and the West Indies. In DYSPEPSIA. d its attendant train of symptoms, it acts more like than m than a medicine. There is nothing in the cole range of the Materia Medica that can for a mont bear a comparison with it in this disease. A full account of this wonderful plant may be found the 11th edition of the U. S. Dispensatory, pages 7 and 1385. A full account of this wonderful plant may be found in the lith edition of the U. S. Dispensatory, pages 1887 and 1898.

A series of experiments, in whick Dr. Bull has been for years engaged, has just been brought to a successful termination, and be is now enabled to offer to the public a clmbination of Cedron with other approved tonics, the whole preserved in the best quality of coppor-distilled Bourbou whisky, which he is confident has ne equal in the world.

He might furnish a volume of certificates, but the public have long since learned to estimate such things at their true value. The safest plan is, for every one to test for himself the virtues of a new medicine. Give

The Programme of the Invaders. They Expect to Take Harrisburg. Then Will Move on Philadelphia. Richmond Reinforced on the 19th. Part of Bragg's Army in Richmond. Refugees Arriving in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, June 25. Information received here this morning from Western Maryland is to the following purport:
Gen. Lee is said to have passed through Winchester on Friday. The entire rebel army was then in motion, claiming to be 100,000 strong.

Ewell was at Hagerstown on Monday, and on Tuesday he marched for Pennsylvania.

Longstreet's troops were about crossing the Petomac, and were to be on this side on Wednesday.

The rebel programme, according to a highly intelligent sympathizer just from Western Maryland, is that Hill's forces were to occupy Gen. Hooker's attention until the main body of the rebel army were well on the way.
The rebel army would then move rapidly
North, having in the meanwhile supplied themselves with fresh horses from Maryland

BALTIMORE, June 25, 2:30 P. M. During the whole of last night, and up to the present time, long trains of wagons, laden with goods and bousehold furniture, have entered the city. Farmers are flocking in with their horses, and also any number of contrabands of all ages. There are about 200 ne-groes between here and Carlisle, on the way. Many are packing their goods for shipment. The matter of declaring martial law is under consideration, to prevent able-bodied men from leaving the city. WASHINGTON, June 25.

The Republican, in an extra to-day, says a entleman arrived here this morning who left lagerstown at six o'clock Monday morning. The rear of the column, understood troops did very little damage beside seizing all the horses they could find.
Our informant says when he left Hagerstown yesterday morning it was understood that Longstreet, in command of the right wing of Lee's army, was then crossing the Potomac below Williamsport.
